July 6, 2008

Dear Members and Friends of UUFNB,

Next month after I return from vacation, I will have the honor of officiating at two marriages, the first with two grooms and the second with two brides. In celebration of this, 10% of this month's non-pledge plate donation will go to Equality California, an organization that is mounting a campaign to defeat Proposition 8, the ballot initiative that seeks to deny lesbians and gays the freedom to marry. Please be as generous as you can!

Remember that you will just be receiving just two digests this month, this one, and one on July 20. If you need to remind folks about a Fellowship-wide event or program next Sunday, please get in touch with BJ Pfeiffer, who will be our Worship Associate next week, and she will make your announcement or call on you to make it. If you would like an e-mail copy of a sermon I have given at UUFNB, send me a note. If you wish to have items included in the Sunday Digest for July 20, please submit them to me by noon on Friday, June 18!

Happy Trails!

UUFNB Announcements

Adult Summer Programs: For July and August, these programs will be offered at 11:15, after the 10 am worship service, at the Boys & Girls Club, 1515 Pueblo Ave.

- July 13 - "Make a Joyful Noise: Music of the World" Adults, teens, and children are invited to join with Craig Payne to "feel the joy of your own music." Please bring your drums, rattles, bells, recorders or other music-making instruments, or just yourselves to explore rhythms from around the world, including your own. Craig also provides rhythm makers and a great appreciation for people and their potential. Children under 10 should be accompanied by an adult.
- July 27 - Social Justice Film. "Hacking Democracy" is a modern true to life "David and Goliath story, but in this version it's "Bev Harris Vs Diebold Voting Machines". This Seattle grandmother is both computer savvy and determined to investigate allegations of election fraud reported by citizens of counties from five different states in 2006. After downloading incriminating evidence from Diebold's own website, she travels with fellow activists and HBO filmmakers to document voting machines programmed to steal elections, "security holes in the machines 'custody of care'" (who has access all year-round) and uncovers evidence of purposely miscounted votes. HBO also documented incidences of secrecy, cronyism, and incompetence. After viewing the movie, there will be a presentation and discussion with Joann Gifford, Calistoga High School teacher computer buff since their inception in the seventies, organizer, activist and mom.

A Message for the Summer from Your Minister . . .

One of the most exciting things that came out of the Leadership Retreat on May 10 was the idea that we engage the whole UUFNB community in a Social Action project that would help us to approach our ministry in the North Bay with a common sense of mission. Unitarian Universalists love to honor diversity, but unity is also important when faith communities wish to change the heart of a culture. I believe our culture needs changing!

In an effort to choose an all-Fellowship project that will appeal to many of us, the Social Justice Committee and I are asking for proposals from you for projects that might engage our whole community in an effort to work toward expressing our UU values visibly in the North Bay. Possible projects might focus on environmentalism, peace-making, human rights, or anything else you think UUFNB members are passionate about.

If you would like to submit a proposal, please get in touch with me right away and I will send you some guidelines. At the end of July, we will publish any proposals we have received and let you, the members of UUFNB, decide which one you would like to take on. In September we will begin making that project a part of our worship, our Adult and Children's Programs, and our outreach into the North Bay community. We already have one group excited about a proposal to learn about and reduce our carbon dioxide emissions. Let's see how creative we can be!

On another note, like many of you, I will be taking a vacation in July. I will be rafting with my family in Oregon from July 7 until July 18. During this time it will be very difficult to contact me, and so I have arranged ministerial coverage for that time. Should you need emergency pastoral care, the Rev. Chris Bell from the Santa Rosa congregation, and the Rev. Ben Kocs-Meyer, Consulting Minister for the Petaluma congregation will be available. Rev. Bell can be reached by calling 568-5381, and Rev. Kocs-Meyers can be reached at 773-2835.

I will back in Napa between July 20 and July 25, and then gone again to Utah for a family reunion until August 2. During that time I expect to have phone and internet access, and so you can reach me there in case of an emergency by calling my cell, (Board members have my number) or sending me e-mail.

Have a safe and blessed Summer!

Rev. Bonnie Dlott

REflections

I just returned from attending the Unitarian Universalist's annual denominational meeting, General Assembly (GA) held this year in Ft. Lauderdale. While GA officially runs from Wednesday evening through Sunday evening, Monday through Wednesday are heavily scheduled with meetings for the professional staff of our churches, (ministers, religious educators, musicians, and administrators) and the semi-annual meeting of the Presidents of our District Boards. I spent Monday and Tuesday with the Association of UU Administrators, as I am the Treasurer of their Board and all day Wednesday with the District Presidents. So although the first three days of my week there was spent doing the work of the denomination, the rest of the week was spent in workshops for the Fellowship.

One of the workshops I attended was "Religious Education for Small Congregations". I was interested in seeing what kind of information the Minister and credentialed Religious Educator had that could enrich our program. Small congregations are those under 150 members, and the workshop facilitators started out by asking by a show of hands the size of the congregation we served. Most of the attendees were from churches that were between 100 and 150 members. The facilitators then asked us to respond with a show of hands to the following, how many churches:

- Have a paid Director of Religious Education?
- Have some measure of ministry involved in the RE Program?
- Have a teen program?
- Have Adult Programs?
- Have an RE Committee?
- Have youth involved in the Sunday service?

I was surprised and pleased to see that I was the only attendee to raise my hand to every one of those questions. In fact, most of the attendees (and none of the larger churches) had any of these in their program.

Clearly, this is mainly due to your farsightedness in expanding the RE program for the children who will be here, your willingness to welcome the new programs I have offered and to have willing volunteers to teach the children and adults. All of this energy serves to deepen the faith of our church family and serves as a visible outward sign to the wider world that we are a religious people, who take religious education seriously.

We have done much, but there is more to do. The RE Council has an ambitious plan for next year and is still formulating the details. We could always use new ideas and energy, won't you join us? Please call me so we can discuss how you can join our team!

Bring Drums! Ritual Garb Encouraged

The festival of Lammas, also known as Lughnasadh, celebrated by the ancient Celts on or near August 1, marks the first harvest of the year and the beginning of the time of decreasing light. Many earth-centered people feel this turning, and use the Lammas festival to express their gratitude for the Earth's bounty and to prepare for the transition into the dark time of the year. Corn and wheat are featured in celebrations of Lammas.

A Few Other UUFNB Events . . .

At 5:30 pm on Tuesday July 8, Barbara Kummer is hosting another DVD viewing and pot luck at her home, located at 1260 Shadybrook. This time, we'll be viewing a DVD on Thomas Berry. For those of you who are not familiar with Thomas Berry, here is an excerpt from an interview by Derek Jensen: (the whole article can be read at www.derrickjensen.org/berry.html)

Berry: We need to regain our sense of the natural world as sacred. All that is left to us these days is the possibility of going to the seashore, or the mountains, or another wilderness area. But even this experience has become progressively less meaningful and more separate from our day-to-day existence. In our workaday world, we are no longer present to the natural world in any manner. We no longer see trees as other beings to commune with. We are not taught to make that connection, not encouraged to speak of trees this way. That's why we live in a world of concrete and steel, of wires and wheels and mechanisms. This is the tragedy of our civilization: our children don't see the stars because of light pollution; they play on grass poisoned with pesticides; they experience a world circumscribed by so much human-made material they are deprived of any normal relationship with the earth.

As adults, we maintain that disconnection. At one time, we depended directly on the earth for the necessities of life. We recognized this dependency and gave thanks and praise for it, as indigenous and agricultural peoples still do. But now most of us have no idea where our food comes from.

Jensen: And we work a lot harder to get it than hunter-gatherers did.

Berry: The way humans lived before civilization was a lot less work, because we ate what the planet naturally produced, so our food sources renewed themselves. And the planet offered us not only food, but also its wonders, its presence. There was none of this separation of the sacred and the secular: both spiritual and physical well-being were granted at the same time, because -- and this is most important -- the physical and the spiritual are two dimensions of the same thing.

Each thing is so present to everything else in the universe that nothing is separate.

Inspiring! Please join us! If you would, please RSVP to Barbara Kummer at barbarak@napanet.net. She asks that you bring your own plate and utensils.
